

Acoustic Seagliders: Technology and Applications

Lora Van Uffelen

Assitant Researcher
Department of Ocean and Resources Engineering
School of Ocean and Earth Science and Technology
University of Hawaii

POST 127

Wednesday, October 28

3:15-4:15 pm Seminar

Abstract

Seagliders are low-power autonomous underwater vehicles (AUVs) that are well-suited for persistent ocean monitoring. Data from Seagliders equipped with acoustic recorders are used for applications ranging from measuring acoustic scattering due to internal waves to testing pre-cursors to underwater GPS to observations of marine mammal vocalizations.

To receive ORE Seminar announcements by e-mail, please visit http://www.ore.hawaii.edu/OE/ore_news.htm